'Plenty of Material' for Cabinet, Says Premier Flemming

Hugh John Flemming, newly elected premier of New Brunswick, says he has "plenty of good material to choose from" forming a cabinet in spite of the 17-year absence from office of his party. Flemming, shown receiving congratulations from his wife, led the Progressive Conservatives to victory over John McNair's Liberals, winning 36 of the legislature's 41 seats.—(Central Press Canadian.)

B.C. Man Plans Modernizing Of Ceylon Fishing Industry

OTTAWA, Sept. 25 (CP).—A husky British Columbian flies back to the Orient Friday to spark a $1,000,000 Canadian effort to start the modernization of the primitive fishing industry of Ceylon with gifts of three new ships, a refrigeration plant and human skills.

This latest Canadian government move in the Commonwealth Colombo Plan to build up South and Southeast Asia was announced today and it represented a considerable triumph for Donald M. Haywood of Vancouver. He is the young executive loaned by British Columbia Packers, Ltd., a year ago to go to Ceylon—smallest of all the Commonwealth's dominions—to see what could be done to build up its backward fisheries.

He came back to Canada two months ago to sell the government on a varied program. They accepted nearly everything he sought—including diving equipment for pearls—and Friday he flies back to Ceylon to his wife and two children and another eight months in which the program should bloom.

Another 15 Canadians—fishing boat captains, two fisheries scientists, people to build Ceylon's first fish refrigeration plant—will follow him as well as three new boats to put the program into stride.

FISHERY UNTOUCHED

Mr. Haywood, obviously fond of Ceylon and its people, told reporters today his year as consultant to the government in Colombo showed him an "obsolete and inefficient" fishing industry where 70,000 men fished with hand-lines and where the island's potentially larger, offshore fishery was untouched.

Canada is going to provide a nucleus that can chart the lines for long-range fishing and marketing policy out there, Mr. Haywood said.

Canada is providing:
1. Two fully-equipped 44-foot fishing boats to be built in B.C. shipyards and to be ready by late December. The contracts will be announced shortly.

2. A 145-foot, steel deep-sea trawler being bought in Britain.

3. Six expert fishermen from the two coasts to train Ceylonese fishermen.

4. The refrigeration plant with assistance.

Segregation Plan Tried for Addicts

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Sept. 25 (CP).—Oakalla prison authorities in an effort to stop the spread of drug addiction within the prison walls are separating addicts and traffickers from other prisoners.

Warden Hugh Christie said today that the segregation of the prison's 150 drug prisoners from the remaining 650 started a week ago and is just about complete.

"We are trying to provide for them as wholesome a work and recreation program as possible," he said.

The segregation is the first concrete step toward drastic reforms in the treatment of narcotic users and peddlers in British Columbia.

Segregation is necessary, experts say, because addicts are known to "contaminate" others with their habit.

Warden Christie said drug convicts are normally more intelligent than other prisoners and can work "angles" of various sorts when they are mixed with others.

"Actually, this sort of discrimination is not too good," the warden said. "But until we have treatment centres we have to make a move of this sort."

At the June meeting of the associated body a Courtenay-Cornwall brief urging a completion of a road north of Campbell River to Coal Harbor had been accepted.

No action had been taken on the matter the meeting was told, yet considerable newspaper publicity had been given the loop road from Lake Cowichan to Port Renfrew and the circle route from Courtenay to Cumberland to the Alberni.

Logging communities north of Campbell River would grow if a highway to the north was pushed through, Mr. Barrie said, and the whole island would benefit.

T. G. S. Chambers, a Forbidden Plateau owner, urged completion of the Cumberland-Alberni loop. The road north was of little value to Courtenay, he said.

City Men Receive Royal Decorations

Three Victoria navy men are among seven to be decorated by the Queen for outstanding service in Korea.

Capt. Dudley G. King, C.D., R.C.N., and Capt. Paul D. Taylor, R.C.N., have been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and Lieut. (L.) Nelson Ralph Banfield, R.C.N., was mentioned in dispatches.

Capt. Plomer, of Saint John, N.B., was in command of Cayuga in 1951 and 1952 during two tours of operations in Korean waters and was senior officer of the Canadian destroyers serving there.

He is now commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Cornwallis at Digby, Nova Scotia.

SENIOR IN FLOTILLA

Capt. King commanded H.M.C.S. Athabaska during her 1951-52 tour of Korean waters, and was, for a time, senior officer of the flotilla.

He is now deputy director of naval plans and operations at naval headquarters, Ottawa.

Capt. Taylor recently completed his second tour of operations in Korea as commanding officer H.M.C.S. Sioux. Previously mentioned in dispatches, he is now assistant Canadian naval attaché at Washington, D.C.

Lieut. Banfield has just completed two tours of duty in Korean waters and is now serving ashore at naval headquarters.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started at 1:45 p.m. while mill manager Ray Jones was addressing a Rotary luncheon in Prince Rupert.

Damage has not yet been estimated. The fire was brought under control by the Prince Rupert fire department and about 50 mill employees who pitched in to fight the blaze.

Name of the injured man was not known. He was taken to General Hospital here after jumping from a window in one of the bunkhouses.

The mill is part of a $35,000,000 cellulose plant brought into operation last year by Columbia Cellulose.

Telephone lines to the mill were cut by the fire.

Clouds, Wind Little Help In Forests

Some clouds and a light wind will offer little aid to fire fighters today who are hoping for any amount of rain, no matter how small.

As the 14th rainless day passed and the only hope of rain moved off to the north, 27 fires continue to rage in the Vancouver forest district.

Towering flames on Mt. McDonald had Sooke and Langford residents worried last night, but Forest Ranger John P. Greenhouse explained that it was only a backfire set by his men to keep the present blaze in check.

"If the wind holds off we will have no more trouble from that fire," Mr. Greenhouse said last night.

A Pacific storm brought some relief to firefighters, but rain may be expected only along the north and west fringe of the island today.

Overnight dews have eased the fire hazard and helped fire fighters hold the line on all major fires.

A crew of 550 men have kept the Copper Canyon blaze from spreading any further along its three-mile front.

At Lens Creek near Cowichan Lake, an 800-acre fire has been checked on three sides and foresters say there is a good chance of holding it providing there are no strong winds.

Eight new fires were reported yesterday. A one-acre blaze near Sooke and a small fire on Galiano Island are under control.

They would then forge a transfer of the abandoned vehicle to their own (or fictitious) names, swear out an affidavit that the license plates had been stolen and obtain new plates.

The new license plates would be put on stolen cars, leaving little chance of a checkup. The gang would then sell the car.

A former owner of one of the stolen cars spotted it on a used car lot. The proper serial number stamped on the frame proved it was the stolen vehicle.

Final instructions for Monday night's canvass will be given at the meeting, and volunteer workers will hear an explanation of the values of package deals that will be offered to contributors this year.

An emergency meeting of Red Feather canvassers will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall.

In Toronto, meat industry officials said today that housewives should pay less for beef and pork this fall and winter, following announcement of lowering price supports on hogs and cattle.

The 10-cent drop on beef which chain stores in the Toronto area put into effect following the announcement was heralded by many meat packers and buyers as "only the beginning." Prices should drop "substantially," they said.

Plane Blast Cause Held Planted Bomb

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25 (AP).

Investigators said tonight they believed a mysterious explosion which nearly wrecked an airliner in flight was caused by a bomb placed in the baggage compartment by a person who had taken out a large insurance policy on one of the 17 passengers.

The blast blew out one side of the two-engine plane after it took off from here Wednesday for Oaxaca. Several passengers were injured by flying metal. The plane landed at the nearby Santa Lucia military air base.

Investigators said orders had gone out for the arrest of the person who recently insured one of the Mexican passengers for a large sum of money.

Record Haul Of Bullion Still Mystery

Cargo Attendants Queried for Hours

TORONTO, Sept. 25 (CP).—Six boxes of gold bullion worth about $300,000 disappeared from an unguarded cargo shed Wednesday night while awaiting shipment to Montreal by plane.

Four other boxes of gold in the shipment went out on the Trans-Canada Air Lines' Flight 2 from Malton Airport to Montreal on schedule.

Twenty-four hours after the bullion vanished from the T.C.A. depot, police and air lines officials still were baffled about the case. Detectives questioned cargo room attendants for hours but they apparently made little headway.

About 20 attendants work each eight-hour shift. Some of them said the gold shipment was handled like any other cargo. It was left unguarded in the locked cage and no extra precautions were taken.

Dennis Barclay, T.C.A. public relations officer, said late today: "As far as T.C.A. is concerned, the gold is just missing. We have no official knowledge that it was stolen. Nor do we know exactly what it is worth."

BLACK MARKET VALUE
First reports said the missing gold was worth $375,000. However, some air lines officials said the entire consignment of 10 boxes was worth that amount.

On the international black market the stolen gold would bring up to $1,000,000, one policeman estimated.

The gold, packed in small wire-bound boxes, was reported to have come from the rich mines of northern Ontario. It was taken to the big airport, 18 miles northwest of downtown Toronto, by four armed guards in an express truck operated by Brinks, Inc.

One of the guards took up a position at the entrance to the cargo shed in the main airport building, another at the door leading to the airport loading platform. A third stood beside the truck while the fourth wheeled the 200-pound boxes to the shed.

The shipment, which reached the airport at 4:46 p.m. E.D.T., was put in the cargo room's "wire cage." The cage, fashioned of heavy wire mesh, is about eight feet high, five feet long and five feet wide. Its door was protected by a padlock.

Plans called for the shipment to leave for Montreal on a plane at 8:10 p.m. E.D.T.

The plane actually left at 8:30 o'clock with only the four boxes of gold.

In one of the break-ins, a shipment of Swiss watches was stolen. After investigation of the case, police advised Trans-Canada Air Lines to tighten its security precautions at the airport. Police said apparently nothing was done.

One high police official said he was disgusted at the report of the missing gold. He said it would be easy for a car or truck to drive up to the express shed, load up the shipment once the break-in had been made, and make its getaway.

T.C.A. officials have refused to comment on the method of handling the gold shipments, which they described as confidential.

V.M.D. Ready to Bid On Steel Pipe Tender

Victoria Machinery Depot is all set to bid on any tender which may be called by the Greater Victoria Water Board for up to $800,000 worth of steel pipe in the planned extension program.

"We can make delivery next summer," a spokesman said today, after an announcement from Vancouver that the Dominion Bridge Company had secured the Greater Vancouver Water Board's contract for its steel pipe.

"V.M.D. actually underbid Dominion Bridge," an official of the local plant disclosed.

Dominion Bridge tendered for $527,000 and V.M.D. for $472,000.

"The time element defeated us," V.M.D.'s spokesman explained. "Delivery is the deciding factor in such contracts."

Dominion Bridge gets its steel from the United Kingdom or American mills, it is understood. However, early in the year, the V.M.D. official said, it is anticipated that Canadian controls will be lifted entirely and steel will find its own market, unaffected by government management.

V.M.D. will be able to guarantee fulfillment of contract by July or August, or even earlier, if required, the spokesman said.

It may surprise the Cowichan Indians to learn that the totem pole they made for the Canadian Scottish to take to Germany is to hold an honored place in the mess of the Royal Scots Regiment, now part of the Berlin garrison of the 27th Brigade.

Word reached here yesterday that in return for many kindnesses, the Canadian Scottish plan to give the pole to their affiliated Highland regiment as a thank-you gesture.

Through an appeal launched by The Daily Colonist last autumn the Indian handiwork was sent to the Canadian Scottish company at Valcartier shortly before embarkation for overseas, where they joined the 27th Brigade's Highland Battalion.

Both units are going on exercises shortly, and the presentation will take place when this is completed.

Beef Down Now, Pork Later

Ottawa Cutting Price Aid

OTTAWA, Sept. 25 (CP).—Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced today the government is reducing its floor price on cattle by $2 a hundredweight beginning Monday, except for heavy beef.

The minister said the government floor price for good steers at Toronto and Montreal will be reduced to $23 a hundredweight from $25, but the $25 floor price will remain until November 15 for heavy steers and heifers—those scaling 700 pounds or more—those scaling weight—which may have been held back and must be marketed shortly or drop in value.

The minister told a press conference that a floor price for cattle will be maintained until the lifting of the United States embargo against Canadian live stock and meat.

He promised that the $25 floor price would be restored next April 1 if the embargo—enforced when foot-and-mouth disease broke out in Saskatchewan last spring—has not been lifted by that time.

At the same time Mr. Gardiner said the present floor price of $25 a hundredweight for Grade "A" hogs, basis Montreal and Toronto, will be maintained until December 31. After that date it will be reduced to $23 a hundredweight which he termed "not an incentive price."

In Toronto, meat industry officials said today that housewives should pay less for beef and pork this fall and winter, following announcement of lowering price supports on hogs and cattle.

The 10-cent drop on beef which chain stores in the Toronto area put into effect following the announcement was heralded by many meat packers and buyers as "only the beginning." Prices should drop "substantially," they said.

Christmas tree in September is not rushing the season at all, says R.C.A.F. recruiting headquarters on Government Street. Reminding Victorians that the spirit of giving belongs to every season, Peggy O'Grady, Airwoman Marilyn Jackman and Johanna Stadfeld set up a poster in their window to recruit help for Community Chest's Red Feather campaign.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Livestock are in the news again. "German Farmer Drives 800 Sheep Through Fog to Asylum," a headline said yesterday. At first glance I took this to mean that the cold war was sending animals off their heads as well as humans, and that these sheep had developed such a dangerous kind of dementia that they had to be certified at once and placed under a psychiatrist's care, regardless of weather.

I pictured that brave farmer plodding through the fog at the risk of his life, surrounded by 800 mad sheep which were likely to become violent at any time. Every now and then the shepherd would pause to administer a sedative to a ram that was raving in delirium, or humor a ewe who fancied she was a cow moose.

And I imagined the farmer shedding a quiet tear of mixed sorrow and relief as the woolly tail of the last of his flock disappeared through the forbidding stone gates of a mental hospital.

Unfortunately, however, this saga of mental hygiene never took place. The news story beneath the headline says that "An East German farmer shepherded his entire flock of 800 sheep past Communist border police under cover of a fog, and requested asylum in the American sector."

That is a different matter. These sheep marched from insanity to sanity. They proved themselves to be a notch higher in intelligence than the black sheep who stayed behind to be fleeced.

The sheep story has its sad overtones. So does the story of the swallows trapped in Austria by a sudden cold-wave. When local bird-lovers carry them south by plane, the swallows will make history as the first birds who ever hired human being to do their flying for them.

Finally there is the story of the cougars. The British Columbia superintendent of predator control has sent two veteran Island hunters to the west coast to cope with an uprising of cougars there. At the same time they are importing Cougars from Montreal with a price on their heads.

All this proves what the Liberals have been saying ever since they were shot down at the ballot box—the Social Credit government is too quick on the trigger.

One Gordon Fox has written to chide me about my attitude toward tobacco. The target of his wrath was a recent column in which I pointed out that the United Church had decided that smoking was not a sin, and rashly suggested that it never was a sin in the first place.

Fox says that the United Church and I (to group the sublime with the ridiculous) are both dead wrong. Not only is smoking a sin, he says, but it will kill you. In making this statement he is a jump ahead of the doctors, who haven't proved so far that tobacco harms you seriously.

It is true that statistics show that heavy smokers' lives are shorter by several months on the average than non-smokers' lives, but there is nothing to prove that tobacco makes the difference. One could assume with equal logic that people smoke because they are nervous and it is the nervousness that kills them—some times at 93 or older.

Fox admits that no commandment specifically covers smoking, since tobacco was unknown in Moses' time. But "the very first commandment, 'thou shalt have no other gods before me,' covers the point of submitting oneself to the enslavement of health-wrecking habits."

So you can, if you choose, interpret Scriptural law to forbid any habit which happens to be distasteful to you—growing giant pumpkins, playing the zither, or eating too much. If tobacco has slain its thousands (which I doubt), eating has slain its tens of thousands—and yet eating is a very good habit in its place. What's your attitude toward food, Mr. Fox?

"I should think Mortimore himself is a very good example of what one can become by the excessive use of weed smoke instead of decent fresh air," Fox says.

Well, Mr. Fox, since you have never set eyes on me (unless that was your eye I saw at the keyhole the other day) you make rather bold to diagnose my case. All you have to go on is my report of an occasional cold and those specks on my picture above, which I assure you are not smoker's pox but type-lice-planted there by some evil printer.

Operator of Boat House Dies

Herbert Corfield, a well known Sidney resident and boat house operator died at the Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday.

Mr. Corfield had been ill for some time. He was 66.

A former resident of Duncan and Koksilah he is survived by his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Knibbs, Victoria, and two other daughters in other parts of Canada and the U.S.; two sons, Angus of Jordan River and Dennis of Ladysmith; five brothers, Fred in Sidney, Ernest in Parksville, Norman in Nanaimo, Truff in Courtenay and Walter in England.

Total highway travel in 1952 will reach a record of 485,000,000 miles, with 80 per cent of the total mileage being traveled on only 20 per cent of our highways, according to the Automobile Club of New York.

Canadian Political Winds Blow Toward Socreds, Says Leader

The political winds of Canada are blowing toward Social Credit according to Solon Low, national leader of the party, who addressed some 500 Victorians last night in what he called "just a chat, not an oration."

"Ineptitude of the old-line parties has created 'a political vacuum from sea to sea,'" he said. "I find an expression of real hope over all of Canada that the Social Credit party can fill that vacuum."

"Even old Ontario is going to succumb to this movement before very long," he told an enthusiastic audience.

Describing the effect of the recent B.C. election of a Social Credit party as "electrical," Mr. Low said one reason for the victory was that people recognized that Socreds offered "moral regeneration in government."

"CONFISCATION"

He charged that old-line parties were to blame for "confiscation of 32 billion dollars in purchasing power of the Canadian people," and said they are steeped in patronage.

The C.C.F. party was a special target of the Socred leader. "We can do without the C.C.F. party in Canada," he said.

The C.C.F. has "degenerated into a socialistic plan for public ownership," he said. "They stated on many occasions that they are trying to bring social justice to Canada."

BAT ALONG

"As far as that goes, we will bat along and assist because that is our objective too. The C.C.F. party has no responsibilities, as your B.C. Social Credit cabinet now has, and all they will do is talk," he said.

If B.C.'s Socred government retains humility, it is "not going to fail or let you down," he said. He linked B.C. closely to Alberta, and said, "We have been in Alberta for 17 years. We held a beachhead there from 1935 against everything the old-line parties could do."

"Nothing has given Social Credit such a shot in the arm as the British Columbia election, followed by the Alberta victory," he said.

Socreds have not forsaken their monetary reform, he stated, outlining the plan as it would apply on a federal level.

"MAKE GIFTS"

"The only way to get around inflation is to make gifts to the people of purchasing power," he said.

Instead of floating loans by issuing bonds, Canada should simply print more money, he said, and "give it to the people as debt-free money. If should be spent in circulation so that it becomes a natural resource."

Canada should also take British sterling in exchange for goods that otherwise cannot be sold, he claimed.

The recent Social Credit victory in B.C. "started people from one end of Canada to the other," he said. "Now you must be prepared to take your responsibility as citizens and mark your ballots simply and honestly."

It was the 34th cougar in less than three years for "Sam."

Sooke Man Brings Down Tenth Cougar

Ed Shaw of Sooke bagged his tenth cougar of the year Thursday.

He first spotted the cat crossing a logging road near Mur Creek about three miles out of Sooke. With the help of his six-year-old roan hound "Sam," he bagged the animal in 20 minutes.

It was the 34th cougar in less than three years for "Sam."

And What of the Price?

THE announcement that the first shipment of crude oil from the Alberta fields to British Columbia will be made tomorrow, when 27 tank-cars will leave the Leduc area for Vancouver, is of major interest to this province for two reasons.

The first is that the arrival of Alberta crude will mark the beginning of British Columbia's first break from dependence on foreign sources of supply. The company to which the initial tank-car shipment is consigned states that within a few weeks gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products refined from the output of Canadian wells will be available to west coast consumers. Subsequent rail shipments from Alberta will supply more than half the company's daily requirements, and when the trans-mountain pipeline is completed the refinery will use nothing but Canadian oil. The multi-million outpouring of dollars to California oil producers then will cease, which will be a fine thing for this province and the Dominion.

The second reason for general interest in this important development is the matter of price. Nothing was said about this in the announcement, but a question consumers are bound to ask will be about the effect on retail prices when the company is able to draw 50 per cent and ultimately 100 per cent of its crude oil requirements from within Canada. Prices farther east of Alberta than Vancouver is first began to flow in that direction, and it is natural that consumers in this province should look for some advantage when products of Canadian oil become available here.

It would be a peculiar coincidence if the cost of Alberta crude landed in Vancouver should just happen to match the cost of importing from California; yet hints were dropped by the industry some time ago that completion of the pipeline might not benefit B.C. consumers, because the cost of operating the line would about equal the cost of bringing in crude from outside Canada. Consumers may prove hard to convince on that score.

Already there is one remarkable coincidence in the price policy of the oil industry in B.C. How does it come about that several companies operating under widely differing conditions (some importing refined products, others doing their own refining from imported crude) charge exactly the same prices to the tenth part of a cent for their products at retail? It overtaxes credence to believe that the costs to the various companies of laying down supplies at retail outlets in each region are identical. When prices were under government jurisdiction and the companies had to submit their books to the controlling board, it was shown that operating costs differed substantially, and that some companies could afford to sell gasoline cheaper than others for the same percentage margin of profit.

One of the main reasons why the B.C. government withdrew price controls was that it had become impossible to fix uniform prices that would be fair to the suppliers and to the public in an industry subject to so many varying factors. The other was that the government recognized the desirability in the public interest of restoring the industry to a competitive basis. Where is there a shred of evidence of competition now? The fact that prices for the two grades of gasoline are the same at every pump in town, regardless of brand, and have been so ever since controls were lifted, invites question.

Reduced to a Farce

BRIGADIER Rockingham, whose personal experience of the Korean front left him with no illusions about the Red Chinese forces, said in effect this week that the truce talks are phony. The Chinese had no real reason for wanting a truce; they were pinning down a huge Allied effort in planes, ships and men—and still are for that matter. Nobody, said the brigadier, presumably meaning no one in authority, now believes the Chinese intend to negotiate a cease-fire.

This reduces the truce talks, spun out over an unheard-of 15 months, to the level of a farce. The delegates continue to meet every few days or so, face each other for 60 seconds or 60 minutes, exchange acrimonious compliments, and then decamp. By present indications it looks as though they could keep on doing this forever; they have even had permanent huts built recently for the purpose.

There would be dubiety on the allied side at the start of these peculiar conversations, begun perhaps on the thesis that anything that would stop the shooting was worth trying, but one wonders what gain there is in continuing them. It cannot be maintained that the slightest headway is being made, and the shooting has not stopped. Sporadic but strong ground assaults in recent weeks are proof enough that if it suited the Red Chinese to launch a full-scale offensive the Pannunjon talks would be no deterrent. Over all, of course, hangs the gloomy conviction that no one seems to have a worthwhile idea as to how to bring the Korean campaign to an end.

The line must be held, that goes without saying, but the allies scarcely enhance their status by allowing the Red Chinese to play fast and loose with them in negotiations that so obviously are false.

ACCORDING TO PROTOCOL

Sir,—For so long now we have had the idea instilled into us, psychologically, of the awful fear of having our government overthrown by force. We are of course fully aware that force carries many definitions and it would now seem that the electorate of British Columbia is experiencing the novelty of having a pseudo-government forced upon them by mental process if possible.

Social Credit is the label for a political party and a leader was chosen by some and he in turn was requested by a higher authority to form a government; forming a government means much more than just forming a cabinet inclusive of two members who have not been passed on by the electorate. With the greatest of respect for the Sacred leader's gallantry and full awareness of the fluke known as the transferable vote which has thrust him on the wheel he is now trying to tread, it is unthinkable that he could be devoid of the understanding of the electorate wishing to have its rights respected.

The rights of the electorate were impinged on by the transferable vote which placed the voters in a comparable position to that of a backward people unable to choose for themselves. The leader of the Social Credit party could act according to protocol and legalize his novelties by calling a session of parliament. That right is due even his own minority following who have given him all the power he now possesses and in whom they placed their trust.

WAR VETERANS' ALLOWANCE

Sir,—There are so many grades of pensions it is very difficult to keep track of them. As far as the Imperial pensioners are concerned they are very grateful as a whole for being taken into the D.V.A. and the privileges that ensue, if they fulfill certain conditions. It seems rather incongruous that the federal government should institute an old age pension with no means test and at the same time deduct this amount from the newly acquired allowance from the D.V.A. It would be very interesting to know what the federal government considers a no means test.

Your editorial was logical with its desire to rectify an injustice that is all too prevalent in this mercenary age.

NEVILLE E. FAIRWEATHER

Saseen, R.R. 2

Sir,—It is with surprise that I read a letter in your paper signed Allan M. Davies with regard to the war veterans' allowance. Does he not know it is a recognized fact and proved by medical statistics that all veterans who served in the trenches and front-line area for any length of time, shortened their span of life by at least 10 years. Even the government recognized this fact. All these veterans, therefore, who are between the ages of 60 and 70 should come under the 70 and 80 age group, and not be subject to that ordeal of having investigators go into all their private and personal matters to a humiliating degree.

I wonder if Mr. Davies has had the experience of having to live, pay rent and other incidentals on what the government allows a burnt-out veteran, i.e., $50 for single and $80 per month for married men. I say thank God we have papers like The Colonist and the Legionary who realize that the war veterans' allowance and permissible income ceilings are totally inadequate these days of high prices. The legislation passed with regard to the burnt-out veteran is a black page in the records of this present government. Qualicum Beach, B.C. DR. H. H. LITSEY.

Sir,—You are to be complimented on championing the cause of war veterans. These men having given all they could to this country, even to the risking of their lives, are not receiving the consideration this service really deserves.

It is clear to see that those who say the war veterans' allowance is ample for a livelihood, are not dependent on it. No one solely dependent on this allowance can afford the expense of hospital insurance and doctors' bills, etc., while necessary clothing is almost out of the question. This situation compels allowance recipients to throw themselves on the generosity of others.

Even our provincial government is unfair, for while the security old age pensioner has hospital and doctor, etc. free, these premature old-agers have to foot these bills, or are expected to. How can it be done out of such a meagre income. This discrimination should be abolished and everyone given the same consideration.

"STOP-GAP" REGIME

Sir,—I notice in The Daily Colonist that the M.L.A. elect for Victoria, Mr. W. T. Straith, has become a prophet, and has termed the Social Credit provincial government a stop-gap regime. Strange, Mr. Straith didn't foresee the majority of taxpayers wanted a "stop-gap" regime to get good results instead of promises by the dozen.

Good results by the "stop-gap" regime will naturally make that regime an "all-time" regime. Meantime, Mr. Straith is displaying his imaginary magic wand to stop the "stop-gap" regime and change it to "ye olde Liberalism."

The majority of the people in the world today will long remember what a once great American said: "You can't fool all the people all the time."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE literate world thinks of Anthony Eden as the perfectly controlled man, poised, immaculate, calm and even-tempered, to the extent even that he lacks the fire and spirit to be a great political leader.

According to the Recorder, a British weekly, this is not so. Eden invariably has himself well in hand but when his dander is up he is as human as the next man. Once in anger he hurled a book across his room in the Foreign Office. He has been known to throw dispatches at hastily retiring officials, and on occasion let his tongue loose.

His friends, in fact, wish he would display his iron more often. He speaks better when he shatters his normally calm facade, or his passions are aroused by deep feeling. Beverley Baxter touched on this once in telling of a day when Eden dropped his reserve and astonished Parliament by the unaccustomed vigor and pungency of his remarks. To Baxter this put Eden in proper line to succeed that markedly non-piased person, Winston Churchill.

If Anthony Eden does occasionally show sparks, however, he comes by them honestly. His father was a notoriously violent and ungovernable man, red-blooded and imperious. A whiff of tobacco smoke drove him to frenzy, a rusted paper made his hair stand on end. One betide anyone who sneezed when he was out shooting. He couldn't abide the presence of his own children, who went in terror of him. He was constantly irascible and noisy.

Probably he was just an extremely rude and bad-tempered man, but he was a baronet and an aristocrat, born to wealth and position, and so his tantrums were put down to eccentricity. These reached a climax in his famous dispute with the artist Whistler, whom Sir William Eden commissioned to paint a picture of his wife. The agreed price was from 100 to 150 guineas, but when Sir William saw that Whistler had painted only a small picture there was a violent quarrel and he handed the artist a cheque for only the minimum amount.

Whistler was equally annoyed but he took the cheque, cashed it, and didn't hand over the portrait. Sir William sued him and then Whistler painted out Lady Eden's head and substituted another, and the fat was in the fire. In the end the courts forced the artist to return the money and pay damages but the baronet never got the picture.

The Eden children, the Recorder relates, grew up in fear of their father's moods and abuse, but at least that irascible parent didn't stint them even if he couldn't show them affection. Anthony went to Eton and then to Oxford, where he became a master of Oriental languages and a notable Arabic scholar, attributes that have served him well in his Foreign Office career.

It would be the example of his father, no doubt, that developed the equable and conciliatory Eden of today, a man respected by all classes in his own country and greatly admired outside. Yet, as the book-throwing incident illustrates, he is no meek and mild lamb-pantry. He has an M.C. to vouch for that too.

He is Winston Churchill's political and loyal heir-apparent but behind the scenes, it seems, he is as restive as some other ministers are under the inquisitive eye of their brilliant prime minister. He resents Churchill's poking into his Foreign Office precincts, which isn't surprising. Membership in a cabinet headed by Churchill can't be exactly a bed of roses.

It is when he succeeds Churchill, after the coronation maybe, perhaps, the real Eden will emerge from out of the polite shadows. Once on his own he may demonstrate there is more dynamic force in that tall, poised, well-controlled figure than many people think there is.

International Commentary ...

Statesmanship at Strasbourg

By S. H. WOOLRYCH, From London

ON the success of Mr. Eden's visit to Strasbourg there can be no two opinions. It was not that he said anything very different from what he said to the committee of ministers in Paris last March, although his speech undoubtedly pleased. At Paris it will be remembered he had put forward his now famous proposals for using the machinery of the Council of Europe (C.O.E.) for the ministerial and parliamentary institutions of the coal and steel pool and of any further "communities" which would be set up. Nor was it merely a case of personal charm, although that certainly helped.

What undoubtedly appealed to the delegates was the fact that the British foreign secretary had taken the trouble to come to Strasbourg to make his appeal to the C.O.E. not to let any sectional groupings, whether of an economic or ultimately political nature, interfere with the essential unity of the free nations of Western Europe. By his action he proved the sincerity of Britain's claims to a vital interest in the future of the council. There was no intention, he insisted, to lay down detailed machinery nor dictate constitutional doctrine. The sole purpose of the proposals was to link the communities with the rest of Western Europe without impairing their independence. The effect he produced was immense.

Signor de Gasperi, who followed the next morning, said that "the United Kingdom had now a real interest in the development of European unity and a desire to co-operate in it in a form compatible with her ties outside Europe. The Italian government was encouraged by these events, a fresh impetus had been given to the unification of Europe."

Perhaps one of the most remarkable speeches was that of M. Spaak, who blessed Mr. Eden's initiative quite unreservedly and expressed the greatest enthusiasm at the recent turn of events, which now promised a fruitful association between "the six" who are members of the new communities and the remainder of the C.O.E. who are not.

One could insist too much, he said, on machinery and constitution building; the real essential lay in the spirit which underlay these things, and in this respect he was now a declared optimist. M. Spaak's commendation was the more generous in view of the speech he made at Strasbourg last December, when he resigned the chairmanship of the consultative assembly, expressing his bitter disappointment at the lack of progress made by the council, for which he largely blamed his British colleagues.

Mr. Eden would be the first to admit that his task had been lightened by the events in Strasbourg which immediately preceded his visit. These had taken a far more favorable turn than could have been anticipated even a week previously. "The coal and steel assembly had set up an 'ad hoc' assembly to draw up by March 10 a constitution for the supranational authority which will be the supreme body responsible for the coal and steel resources of the six. The importance consists of course, in the fact that this constitution will act as a model for other communities such as that for European defense, and it is tacitly accepted that it may prove the initial stage of political federation. But his new body has been sitting at Strasbourg and many of its members are also C.O.E. delegates."

More important still in their instructions was an injunction to invite observers from non-participating members of the C.O.E. who would also have the right to speak. In point of fact, there will be 13 observers to 26 members. These instructions were the result of a resolution passed by the coal and steel assembly, on September 13, declaring its desire to give effect to the British proposals to establish as close relations as possible between the community and the C.O.E. And to complete the chain of events there was the obvious desire of M. Monnet, the president of the coal and steel pool, that these close links should be established, and M. Monnet has not always been a warm proponent of the C.O.E.

So far so good. The C.O.E. has not been slow to respond to these advances and has in its turn through its general affairs committee also set up an ad hoc committee to collaborate with the new ad hoc assembly. There has been a certain amount of criticism at the creation of all these new bodies which seem to complicate the task of uniting Europe and must certainly bewilder the man in the street. But these will be the remedy and redundant bodies will doubtless quietly disappear. What really matters, as M. Spaak rightly insists, is the spirit behind them and this at the moment is better than could have possibly been foreseen a short time ago.

The testing time will come after the assembly ends, when members return to their own countries and to the national claims which will be put forward in their own parliaments. It is easier to express sentiments of European solidarity in the warming atmosphere of an international gathering than in the blunter conditions of home politics. But it is no small thing that so many of the delegates of the C.O.E. have acted and spoken as responsible European statesmen.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

AN old friend of mine in his early fifties is just back at his office desk after a five-month enforced absence due to high blood pressure and a threatened heart condition.

"I spent it," he says, "at a summer cottage I rented in a quiet rock of the woods. The funny part of it is, the next cottage to me was occupied by a man I have known for years, and who also was suffering an enforced holiday. But his malady was the bottle."

"We organized a branch of a new society," he called Anti-Brief Case Anonymous. He used to carry home a couple of crocks in his brief case every other night. I used to carry home unfinished work in my brief case every night. We both agree that our trouble arose from carrying brief cases.

"Hard work would never have damaged me if I hadn't taken it home with me for years. And taking home a half bucket of whisky two or three times a week was what broke the health of my neighbor. He admits there are enough controlling factors—public opinion, the attitude of his employers—about taking the regular drink home, but in his case, whisky in the house meant he was tapping it outside of any controlling factors, and he went to bed in a blue every night of his life after he was forty."

"As for me, I went to bed in a blue every night, too. But it was weariness of work that beat me. I worked at my office from nine to six every day of the week. Every night I took home a brief case full of another two or three hours' attention. From the age of thirty on, I bet I averaged 70 hours work a week, frequently more. I made hay of course. I got promotion, bigger salaries. I remember feeling rather distinguished to be the only man on the street to carry a brief case home every night and down to the office every morning. It made me feel big exultantly."

"From now on, whenever I see a man carrying home a brief case, I am going to speculate on which injurious goods he is taking home: whisky or work."

The Mouse or the Cat?

(From The Montreal Gazette)

ALL around the world, the West waits to see what Russia will do next, hoping enough strength will be available to destroy or divert the Communist move. Such an attitude of defensive thinking was understandable enough before 1950. Western forces were so small that no other was possible.

But Western knowledge of Russian intentions has grown enormously since then and Western solidarity has grown with that knowledge. Best of all, the power of Western armed services has grown. If this is to be a cat-and-mouse game, perhaps it is time the Allies stopped playing the mouse and began acting more like the cat.

In the cold war, there are many opportunities for offensive action. The 6,000 balloons which were released on easterly winds to bring news to the United States of Europe plan to East Germany are a sample. Such balloons can carry much more than pamphlets. They can carry food and clothing and radio into Communist Eastern Europe, as well as news.

The news they do carry should not content itself with defending the West against Russian charges. It should make charges of its own, charges that are true and indefensible. Russia's one-sided stand on banning of the Atomic Bomb, for instance, would be news to people who have been led for years with Moscow propaganda about Western war mongering.

There are opportunities in other fields than the cold war. There are two hot ones, one in Korea, the other in Indo-China. Korea is a typical stalemate, where we wait on the Reds. But Indo-China is not. If the kind of force were used in Indo-China that has been used in Korea, valuable victories would be gained not only in Asia but in Europe as well. Indo-China is important not only as a strategic outpost, but as a symbol. Victory there would mean enormous new prestige for the West in Asia, enormous new prestige for France in Europe. The psychological effect on Frenchmen would be electrifying.

As Western strength grows, Western attitudes must change. If the West should get the habit of leaving the initiative to the Kremlin, the vision of a free world as we know it would become no more than a dream.

"To train the shark was not so simple as you may think," said the human.

"Fortunately, the brig when she grounded was loaded to the marks with Lamb's Navy Rum. By judiciously rewarding my fishy friend with dark invigorating tots, I so influenced his mind that he would give me the better fish such as turbot, retaining for himself only inferior qualities like cod. A trivial point, perhaps, but I thought good for discipline. I was about to send him to bring me a wife from among the girls bathing in a distant lagoon, when suddenly I sighted a sail. Instantly mounting the shark I went alongside and passing only to present him with the corkscrew, climbed aboard."

"That's a Rum Story," said the wedding guest incautiously.

"Very kind of you, I'm sure, sir," replied the mariner.

"I could just fancy a Lamb's Navy Rum."

Poli-Grip does all this, too:

College Visitors Desired During Anniversary Week

Hope that citizens of the area will visit Victoria College during its October 14 to 19 observance of "Victoria College Week". The week, he mentioned, was being held in commemoration of the college's 50th anniversary. A number of special events and programs have been arranged in institution's new library wing. His address included a brief history of the college, with mention of students and teachers of its first classes.

Age Little Respected By Youth, Club Told

Grey hair and age glean little respect from present-day youth, members of the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club were told last night. Vivian Shoemaker, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., speaking to a meeting of the club at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, said the youngsters of the present era are more sophisticated and worldly-wise than their predecessors.

Lessening of home restrictions make the young people harder to impress, he said, and individualism is slowly dying out, he added. The lack of individualism among boys and girls of this generation was blamed by Mr. Shoemaker on modern advertising in movies, the radio and magazines.

"They are being subjected to pressures from industry through breakfast cereals and the like in their home, whether it is good for them or not," he said.

"The child of today is not as self-reliant as the 'barefoot boy' of years ago, and given a set of circumstances to cope with, he is sometimes at a loss, said Shoemaker.

"There is a cry throughout the country that more personal leadership is needed. You will be a long time waiting returns from this, but it is what must be done," he said.

Latest report comes from Frank Carson, 1216 Pandora, who yesterday told police a prowler had entered his home late Wednesday night through a front bedroom window and stolen $11 from a purse, and an additional $6 from an envelope in the front room.

All drawers in two rooms had been thoroughly ransacked, with contents strewn about the house, Carson said.

An unemployment cheque for $16, taken from a small box in the house, was later found on the front lawn.

Nursing Home To Gain Robert House $42,000

City council voted yesterday to add the $42,000 obtained by sale of the late Prince Robert House to the $82,000 at present in the Victoria Nursing Home fund.

Ald. Mrs. Margaret Christie, strong supporter of the new $400,000 home, made the motion.

Ald. William Pinfold stated that while he agreed with the principle he felt that the city should not commit itself until it was definite that the new home would be built.

One Believed Responsible For City Break-In Wave

City police are investigating another in a recent series of break-ins involving Victoria homes.

Police officials claim it is "quite possible" that the same person or party is responsible for a number of similar break-ins over the past several weeks.

Given third reading and first passing Wednesday morning, the by-law must be delayed so that a whole day passes between this and the final passing.

Princess Robert House sale by-law will be passed by city council at a special meeting this morning.

An unemployment cheque for $16, taken from a small box in the house, was later found on the front lawn.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Eddie Dorohoy, who has never been without an opinion, gets his chance to put his hockey theories—and he has them—into practice.

To state that his selection as coach of the Victoria Cougars was a surprise is rank understatement. Amusement is a better word and hockey fans yesterday could talk of nothing else. It will probably be the same for days to come.

Opinions, of course, are varied. They range from an unknown voice on the telephone, who asked for confirmation of the report yesterday afternoon, then wryly asked "Can't you do something about it?" to veteran sports fan Bill McAllister, who said, "They couldn't get anybody any better."

Louis Glazan is another who found the appointment extremely favorable. Pat Frumento was unflappable. "It's a stunner," he said rather colorfully. "I wish I had known before I bought my season's tickets."

Another fan merely stated, "that just makes it official. He's been doing the coaching ever since he joined the club." Most surprising of all was a charming young lady, who wasn't at all surprised.

Asked if she knew who the new coach was she replied in the negative. Asked to guess, she first asked, "Is it one of the players?" Told it was, she hesitatingly said, "Dorohoy."

That Eddie faces a real test is apparent. In the main, fan reaction has not been too joyful, but a lot of that may stem from the disappointment of not getting the expected "name" who would also bolster the Cougars in a playing way. Just the same, he is going to have more critical fans than a newcomer.

To condemn the appointment is not fair to the player. Eddie deserves his chance now that he has been selected and it could well be that it is a good choice. Most fans know only the cocky talkative centreman who was prone to "pop-off" on the ice at times, no basis on which to judge his coaching potential. Owner Lester Patrick still retains all of the hockey acumen which has earned him the title of the "Silver Fox." It is hardly likely that it is a willy-nilly selection, designed as some have said, to save money. If Dorohoy fails as a coach, Patrick will be hurt financially by diminishing gate receipts and he is quite aware of it.

Dorohoy is a sound hockey player with sound hockey theories. He has suffered most from his willingness to express those theories, as well as others, without provocation, but it does not necessarily hold true that reticent types make better coaches. Sometimes a fellow is quiet because he knows if he expresses an opinion he is undone. Dorohoy will have to prove that he can handle his players, many of them far older in years and hockey experience than he is, and he will also have to prove that he can take care of added responsibility. There is no reason to think he will be unable to match up to the challenge. And so until he doesn't let's give the fellow his chance.

Random Harvest

Stan Williams gets back in the news again with a big splash. Probably a bit bemused after boating a 16-point coho last week, Stan plunged head-first into Saanich Inlet waters while he was trying to untie a balky screw on his outboard motor. He came up without his glasses, now probably being worn by one of the many salmon he has failed to hook. . . . Seats for the theatre television of the Joe Walcott-Rocky Marciano fight sold for $3.75 and up in Seattle. . . . Soccer fans will be sorry to hear that the older Robbins, father of soccer stars Glen, Joe, Cliff, Sid and Jack, is seriously ill in a Victoria hospital. This writer joins with all soccer fans in a wish for a speedy recovery. . . . Jack Westland has been given a lifetime membership, the first handed out, by the Everett Golf and Country Club for winning the U.S. amateur golf championship. . . . Dick Greco, former W.L.L. slugger star, battled only 296 for Montgomery of the Sally League this season but his 35 home runs and 135 runs batted in were tops. . . . Herman Reich, Portland outfielder, first baseman who formerly played in the big leagues, is the latest to find out about Vancouver Island salmon fishing. After a fruitless trip to Saanich Inlet with the writer Wednesday morning—the catch was two grise—he was told about Qualicum Beach possibilities. Two hours Wednesday evening and four hours yesterday morning with guide Mike Gorlick produced 11 scrappy coho. . . . Winnipeg is reported hopeful of staging the Grey Cup final within the next two seasons and plans to erect a suitable stadium. . . . Staffer Ian Glenday was a bit excited yesterday when he read that Cliff Maine had eliminated Vic Selixas, U.S. Davis Cup ace, 6-1, 6-4, in a California tournament. Selixas recently defeated Frank Sedgman, the world's ranking player. Ian took two games from Maine several years ago in a Vancouver tournament and would sort of like to try conclusions with Sedgman. . . . Nick Pesut, the veteran catcher with the gravelly voice, won the popular poll at Tri-City hands down. . . . Attendance at Columbus, of the American Association, was only 78,132—almost 30,000 below the Victoria attendance. Someone will have a big tab to pick up.

United Debuts Tomorrow With Seven New Players

Victoria United will present seven new players and be without three familiar faces when it begins defense of its Coast Soccer League championship at Royal Athletic Park tomorrow against Vancouver Firefighters.

Newcomers playing for the Inter-city club will be Ray Wilkinson and Billy Johnson, two former Old Country players; Harry Carruthers, with Legion of the Victoria and District Football Association last season; Alex Stewart, a youngster up from Esquimalt; Tim Walker, who returns after a season in the district league; Norm Dickie, a former minor association player; and Cliff Robbins, who comes out of semi-retirement.

MAY HOLD KEY

Most of the interest in the new players will be focused on Wilkinson and Johnson, both in the starting line-up announced last night by club president George Eade.

Wilkinson, who has played for Wimbledon, an amateur team in the Surrey League and who played for St. Andrews in the Dominion Football Association Cup playdowns, will start at inside left. Johnson, a former Scottish juvenile who played for St. Mungo, one of the leading teams in the Glasgow area, will start at left half.

Carruthers will be the starting centre-half and the former O.C. player is expected to give United a lot of football. Stewart, a former minor association player, and Cliff Robbins, who comes out of semi-retirement, will start at right half and inside right. The latter, it is hoped, will rejoin the club in the near future.

FIREMEN REBUILT

The Firefighters will present a rebuilt line-up, studded with a number of outstanding youngsters. Among the players well known to Coast Soccer League fans are goalie Reg Sheppard, backs Dick Kenning and Pete Proctor and forwards Art Hughes and Doug Greig.

Les Isaacson will handle the whistle with George Barnes and Den Heiney as line-men. Game time is 2:30.

Victoria United—Bill McAllister, Bill Ross and Joe Robbins; Dave Miller, Harry Carruthers, Bill Johnson, Ted Bask, Jack Robbins, Walter Williams, Ray Wilkinson, Norma Clarkson, Norm Dickie, Cliff Robbins, Tim Walker and Norm Dickie.

Vancouver Firefighters—R. Sheppard, Dick Kenning and Pete Proctor; Art Hughes, Doug Greig, Jack White, Norm Dickie, Cliff Robbins, Tim Walker and Norm Dickie.

HERSHEY, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP).—Goalie Jim Henry of the Boston Bruins sprained his left ankle today in an intra-squad practice scrimmage. He probably will be forced to miss the National Hockey League's all-star game in Detroit on October 5.

New Champion Crowned

A battered and weary battler, Rocky Marciano, 28, of Brockton, Mass., steps back as Jersey Joe Walcott begins his drop to canvas (bottom) in 13th round of their heavyweight championship fight at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium. Punch that knocked the crown from Jersey Joe's head (top) came in 41 seconds of round, when Marciano, far behind on points and down himself for four-count in first round, uncorked "Sunday punch" that made him first white heavyweight champion since Jimmy Braddock lost to Joe Louis in 1937. ## Two Young Men Admit Taking Car

Entering pleas of guilty in Saanich police court yesterday, Ross Jewell, 267 Somerset, and John Barry Mills, 3219 Seaton Road, were remanded until next Thursday on a joint charge of taking a car without first obtaining its owner's consent. The car was a 1951 Buick Wildcat, which was found on a nearby beach police road. The two accused young men, who admitted having taken the vehicle and smashed it, included 128 feet of "sliding burn." The car also traveled an additional 150 feet before turning over a stolen car September 20.

Magistrate H. C. Hall asked for a probation officer's report on the two young men. Defense counsel Grant called a number of witnesses to present character evidence for the two youths. The young men will be kept in custody.

Eighteen-year-old Ian M. Freeman, 919 Forshaw, pleaded guilty to two charges dated September 18, speeding and taking a car without its owner's consent. The magistrate dismissed a careless driving charge against W. J. Rippon, 3114 Irma Street.

Executions Low in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—The federal prison bureau said today that 105 executions were carried out by civil authorities in the United States during 1951. With the exception of 1950, when there were only 82 legal executions, this was the smallest total for any of the 22 years in which national tabulations have been made known.

Figure 1. The effect of the concentration of the  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  solution on the  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  uptake by Chlamydomonas reinhardtii cells. The cells were grown in the presence of 100  $\mu\text{M}$  of  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  and then washed with distilled water. The cells were then incubated in a  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  solution of various concentrations for 10 min. The  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  uptake was measured by  $^{45}\text{Ca}$  uptake. The data are the mean  $\pm$  SD of three independent experiments.

Never Lost Gun Before Famous Royal House Beaten by Scottish

Guns of the 1st Royal Horse Artillery in Germany are gnashing their teeth.

The men who even brought their guns out of the fiery battle of Dunkirk and pried themselves out of the hands of the Germans, are now in the hands of the British.

Another night patrol range is in a valley. The valley is laid with trip wires which set off flares. There are pits covered with nicely camouflaged satchels and a range staff which are around shouting and causing general confusion.

"This should give you some idea of the training we have been doing. The training areas are marvellous!"

News of the success was sent to Lt. Col. W. J. Macdonald, O.C. the Canadian Cavalry Regiment (Princess Mary's) by officer commanding the Scots in Germany, Major J. D. M. Gillan. They form a part of the Highland Battalion with the 27th Brigade in Europe.

Of the "battle" Major Gillan said: "Two days ago we finished a seven-day exercise in which this brigade, together with the XI Armoured Division, represented enemy forces. Broad purpose of the exercise was to teach procedures for crossing major river obstacles. Most notable incident concerned our company was that we captured a battery and signal troops of the Royal Horse Artillery."

The Canadians seem to have proceeded from one exercise to another.

Uncle Wiggly Story - - - By Howard Garis

NIGHT NOISES

While Buster, with Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, are asleep in their little tent, and while Uncle Wiggly is asleep in his hollow stump bungalow, something is happening in the woods.

As you may remember, two cross bears, named Gruff and Grim, had tried to play a trick on Uncle Wiggly to catch that rabbit gentleman. But the trick had failed, thanks to Mr. Blue Jay, and so Uncle Wiggly wasn't caught. He was now safely asleep in his bungalow.

But those two cross bears, Gruff and Grim, were not asleep. They were angry because their trick to catch Uncle Wiggly had failed. Gruff blamed Grim, and Grim blamed Gruff.

"It was all your fault!" grumbled Grim. "There I was, waiting at the Camel Tree end of the path for Uncle Wiggly to hop along so I could grab him. And what did you do?"

"I raced him as far as I could," snarled Gruff. "I saw him napping down the path toward where you were hiding in the bushes. I thought you surely would pop out and grab him. I heard a blue jay bird yelling. But those birds always yell, so I didn't think any more about him. I left the catching of Uncle Wiggly to you. What happened?"

"I think I know what happened," growled Grim. "That blue jay bird warned Uncle Wiggly, and he didn't come to the Camel Tree end of the path where I was waiting. The blue jay spoiled our trick."

"Maybe so," agreed Gruff. "Well, when I catch that bird I will show some of his feathers."

"You can never catch a blue jay," grumbled Grim. "What are we to do next?"

"It is almost time for supper," said Gruff. "But we have nothing to eat."

"Let's take a shuffle through the woods," suggested Grim. "Perhaps we may find a new tree and eat some honey."

"That's a good idea," agreed Gruff. "Come on!"

The two cross bears shuffled and waddled along through the woods, looking for a bee honey tree. But they could not find one. So all they had to eat was some bark from a sassafras tree, a few late blackberries they found on a bush and some wild artichoke roots near a brook.

After this supper, which wasn't very big or good, the two cross bears drank some water from the brook and then walked on through the woods, looking for a place to sleep.

Without knowing it, those bears wandered near Uncle Wiggly's hollow-stump bungalow.

"That must be where the rabbit lives," whispered Grim as he saw the bungalow through the trees.

"That's it! Mr. Fox told us about it!" whispered Gruff. "We'll hide here in the woods until it gets dark. Then we'll sneak up to the bungalow and snatch Uncle Wiggly out of bed."

"That's what we'll do!" growled Grim. So the two cross bears hid themselves amid the trees and bushes back of Uncle Wiggly's bungalow. Then Grim whispered: "What's that white thing near the back fence, Gruff?"

"It looks like a tent. The kind hunters use when they come to the woods to catch us," answered Gruff. "Look, I see a rabbit boy and two dogs going in that tent. They must be going to sleep there, Mr. Grim."

"We'll wait until they get to sleep and then we'll peek in at them," suggested Grim. "After that we'll snatch Uncle Wiggly."

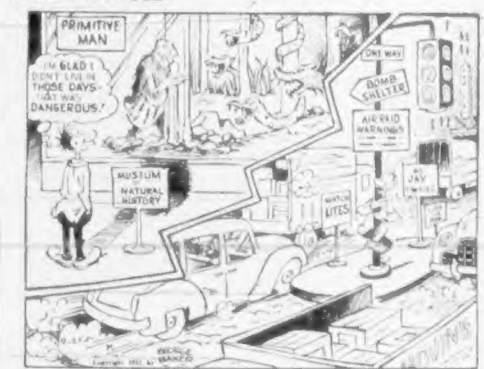

The bears waited and watched the tent where Buster and Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow were sleeping. In the middle of the night Buster suddenly awakened and exclaimed:

"I heard a noise! Wake up, Jackie and Peetie! What was the noise Buster heard?"

I can tell you more in the next story. If the alarm clock doesn't wake up the goldfish and make it sing like a canary bird in the middle of the night.

The bidding:

North East South West

10 Pass 2 Pass

24 Pass 3 Pass

That was the bidding against life master S. Garton Churchill, of Great Neck, N.Y., in the Eastern Team of Four Championships of 1938 — and the fact that "Church" remembers is proof enough that this is one of his favorite hands.

Church is a bidding specialist who favors a system he invented. He sees no need for such gadgets as Blackwood or Culbertson four-five no-trump conventions, and believes, among other things, in showing the highest ranking bidable suit, regardless of length. Consequently, when he held the South cards with Travers LeGros playing North, the opening bid by North was one spade. South responded two hearts and North under the Churchill method was permitted to bid only three hearts as a strong bid—despite the tremendous added value of his hand in support of his partner's heart response.

It is typical of Churchill that

Appeal Enters Second Day In Contempt Conviction

An appeal involving conviction of 15 union men for contempt and a complicated maze of law will go into its second day in B.C. Court of Appeal today.

The men, Tony Poje, vice-president and business agent of the Nahrana local of the I.W.A., and 14 other union members were found guilty in Supreme Court last week of contempt of court.

Issue on this point was taken by R. J. McMaster, who with Alex Macdonald is taking the union's side.

Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran is presiding with Mr. Justice Sidney Smith and Mr. Justice H. L. Bird.

A three month jail sentence and $3,000 fine was levied by Chief Justice Wendell-Farris against Poje and heavy fines against the other 14 for violating an injunction order. The I.W.A. sponsored an application to have the convictions quashed.

The court, which last week sought the assistance of the attorney-general, today named him as intervening party.

D. M. Gordon, who is acting for the attorney-general, told the court he took the position that the case was criminal in nature.

U.S. May Ban Jet Flying For Public

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—America is considering an immediate ban on all public flying displays by jet aircraft.

Recommendations on this line have been submitted here by U.S. Air Force chiefs following the recent crash of an American jet fighter at Detroit and news of Britain's Farnborough tragedy.

For some time newspaper editorials have criticized the fact that pilots have been risking their lives—and their aircraft—to entertain the public. Opinion in both public and official circles is that pilots should undertake test flights only in a military capacity.

There also has been much concern that Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U.S. Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Curtis Le May, the free world's top authority on atomic-attack techniques, their deputies, staffs and logical successors were standing together more or less directly beneath the U.S. jet as it exploded.

Cadboro Bay Gets Group Of Sea Scouts

A Sea Scout group will operate in Cadboro Bay for the first time in nine years.

Scouter George Bennett, the Akela of the Cub pack, conducted the ceremony. Scouter P. Silvertsen is the new Scoutmaster.

The Canadian Scottish Regiment will hold gunnery practice at Heslop Range Sunday.

"C" company will be firing over the range with both 303 rifle and Bren guns.

The same day, support company will hold a driving and tactical exercise at Goldstream.

Oddities in the News

Group Takes Strides —From Dances

VANCOUVER, Sept. 25 (CP)—It's time for a change of clothing that is—at Vancouver teenage dances, the mayor's youth committee reported today.

The committee recommended that strides, pedal-pushers and jeans be banned from teenage dances in future.

Other recommendations of the committee include: Dancing hours limited to 8 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.; smoking limited to 16-year-olds and over and then only in a separate smoking lounge, no floor.

"In this way it is hoped that in reducing the informality of such dances, the various problems which are experienced at present will be minimized," the committee reported.

The recommendations, which would govern the conduct of teenagers between the ages of 13 and 19, will be submitted to city council for incorporation into a city by-law.

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., Sept. 25 (CP)—Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson today took a deep breath of the stale air clogging Assize Court here and said: "If there were a theatre like this courtroom the Crown would probably close it up."

After drawing attention in this manner to the lack of ventilation, the justice switched to the acoustics. Persons speaking inside the courtroom could scarcely make themselves heard, he noted, but outside noises set up a deafening roar.

Then Mr. Justice Wilson ordered a portion of the street adjacent to the courtroom closed to traffic in an effort to cut down on outside interference.

Case continued.

Chambers Vow To Press For West Coast Service

NANAIMO, Sept. 25.—The As smaller but improved boat for so-called Chambers of Commerce the Maquina had been rapid and she went time to press energetically for adequate passenger and freight boat service for the West Coast.

Mr. Maquinney said the Association Chambers are anxious to see what is required on the island and while freight service has been provided, the association will not rest until adequate passenger service reaches these isolated people.

He said the situation pinpoints the road needed to serve the West Coast and said Vancouver Island has never received a fair share of road building in relation to its per capita share of the motor vehicles of the province, more than 18 1/2 per cent of the population and one-ninth of all the wealth of the province. Yet it has only 9.4 per cent of the roads.

Bus Drivers Wonderful In London

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(Nan-Kemnews).—The time-honored cliché, uttered by every traveler who visits London, is, "Your policemen are wonderful."

But what about the bus conductors? They are doubly wonderful. Despite the traffic jams, the ceaseless inquiries, the nerve-fraying crowds of people and those endless up-and-downstairs journeys, London's bus conductors go about their task with great good humor.

"They call you 'guy,' 'mate,' 'sir,' or 'Charlie-boy' with magnificent indiscriminate. They crack jokes with old ladies, advise old men on filling up their football coupons.

One conductor on a certain Gray's Inn Road bus always shouts, "We are at monarch's party," when the bus arrives at King's Cross. Another conductor, when he gets to the Richmond terminus, calls out, "All change 'ere for 'ong Kong.' It does not mean a thing, but it always raises a smile.

However, one would not be surprised if he had lived in Hong Kong at some time or other. You never can tell with bus conductors, as the following story will show:

At Trafalgar Square a passenger got on a bus bound for Victoria station. A Chinese couple got on too, and the Oriental started to ask his destination in stumbling, tongue-tied English. The conductor replied in fluent Chinese. It turned out that he had been posted in China during World War II.

Chamber Hits C.P.R. Methods

COURTENAY, Sept. 25.—An attack on alleged monopolistic methods of the C.P.R. was made tonight at the first fall meeting of the Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce.

An official of the Black Creek Co-operative complained that distributors were being charged double for goods being brought up the Island by Island Freight Limited.

Articles were charged as far as Courtenay, and recharged up to Black Creek, he said.

ernment should issue more than one franchise for the carrying of passengers and freight on Vancouver Island. The C.P.R., he said, has the rail haulage, the buses and the freight.

He said if there were other companies in competition distributors might get a lower rate.

The chamber agreed to form a committee to investigate the double rates being charged and to complain to the appropriate minister in the new government.

OLIVER... twist

I walked around the corner in the morning breeze, and said to Mr. Miles — "Players, please."

Oliver wears a jacket, a tan pongee, & he's loaded with jokes and repartee. He's an English bloke, allho nowadays he's taken on most of our Colonial ways. He fits in this store, suggesting the Mail, just as the mirror fits to the wall. E. J. Morris is the name of this shop, & timeless tone has this famous pipe-shop. Of authentic design for tobacco jars, the correct atmosphere for selling cigars. I loitered about a moment or so. "Look," said Pongee, "before you go: this cigarette holder," & he lifted the sill, "it's something new by Alfred Dunhill. On the counter, he placed the box, just like a jeweller selling his "rocks." He held it up & fondled the thing, like Clarence Johns selling a ring. Then he passed it to me, this man from the Strand, so I could hold it in my hand. "Hummum," I mumbled, thinking him smart. "It really is a thing of art." "Notice," he smiled, "that little white dot, you KNOW by that a Dunhill you've got." "Who said I've GOT it?" and I passed it back, he pulled it apart & renewed the attack. "See these crystals," now more keen, "they block & trap the nicotine. They're white, you see, but don't stay like that, after the smoke, they're black as your hat. "Zat so?" I replied, & said "Let's see," as he passed it again right back to me. I shook the crystals, would see them duller. "Have you one?" I said, "in a different color?" He reached in the case & then he said, "Oh, look at this, a lovely red." Once again 'twas in my fist, & Oliver waited, his hands a-twist. I bot the thing, 'twas $3.61, then I walked again into the sun. It slipped from my teeth, I wasn't used to the strain, it rolled away & went down a drain.
